Final Tribute Paid Mr. H. Currie

MR. HENRY H. CURRIE

Mr. Henry Havelock Currie, long time resident of the Albert district, passed away peacefully at 20, at the age of 92 years and 8 months. In spite of his years his health for the past few months had been exceptionally good and therefore his death came as a shock to relatives and friends.

Mr. Currie was born at Springfield, P.E.I., the second eldest in the family of ten born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Currie. All brothers and sisters have predeceased. In 1886 he married Miss Ada Hunter and to this union was born six children, five of whom are living. The elder daughter, Mrs. Hardy, died in 1920.

In 1916 Mr. and Mrs. Currie moved to the Albert District where he remained until his death. Mrs. Currie's passing in February 1946 brought a marriage of nearly sixty years to a close.

Funeral services were held in the Irma United Church. The Rev. H. Inglis officiated and his message was one of hope and comfort. Hymns sung were "I to the Hills will Lift Mine Eyes" and "Abide with Me, Mrs. Simmerman sang "Silent, Beloved, Sleep and Take Thy Rest."

Interment was made in the Irma Cemetery. Four grandsons, Messrs. L. Hardy, A. Currie, R. McRoberts, R. Currie, also C. Jones and W. Inklin acted as pall bearers.

Mr. Currie leaves to mourn four sons, Gerald and David of Edmonton, Ivan and Leigh of Irma, and one daughter, Mrs. McRoberts of Irma. Also nineteen grandchildren and thirty-four great-grand children.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from The family: Ivan, Catherine and Leigh; Dick, Edna, Alan and Sheila; Ada and Clifford and family; George and Daisy; Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Hardisty Rink Win G.C. Event In Ladies Spiel

The Irma Ladies Curling Club held its third Open Bonspiel at Irma on January 23 and 24. Rinks from Hardisty, Viking, Chauvin, Wainwright, Buffalo Coulee and Mannville were represented. Besides our four Irma rinks, the three sheets of ice and the matched rocks were openly admired by all, as was the lovely weather that came our way and the delicious banquet served on Friday night by the Junior W.A. in the basement of the United Church. All visiting rinks attended the banquet. A fine supply of pies were donated by friends of the club. These, with the outside help that was given in serving the same, were all greatly appreciated.

Most of the curling games were closely contested and the 13 sets of prizes donated by the Irma Club were won as follows:

First in the Grand Challenge, Mrs. Hendricks, Mrs. Kobitsch, Mrs. Broughton, Jackie Hendricks of Hardisty. Their prize was four table lamps.

"...the willingness to find a way"

A man who started a new business a few years ago recently wrote to pay tribute to the bank's part in helping to make it a success:

"We were fortunate in having, as our banker, a man who could combine with experience the willingness to find a way that called not for experience alone but for imagination as well."

The chartered banks are forever alert to the fresh problems, the changing needs of their customers. At all times, in all your banking problems, you can depend on your local bank to bring experience and imagination to the task of helping you to "find a way".

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

A House of Her Own

By MARY L. AKSIM

IT WAS only after old Mr. Briggs died that Etie's dream began to take reality. Through all the years of living in other people's houses, setting down her suitcases in successive attic rooms, she had told herself that some day she would live at peace in a little house of her own. But she had never really believed it.

She and Mrs. Charles, who cleaned for Doctor Elliot and Judge Henshaw, and thus was a lady of ready means, often discussed the kind of home they would buy when each "retired" on their "savings". Really, Etie's "savings" had never amounted to more than a few dollars which she kept in an old box. There were days of panic as she added up the few coins and bills and thought of the time when she could work no more. Then she would resolutely refuse to accompany Mrs. Charles on a Saturday bus trip to town, where they enjoyed "doing" the shop windows.

The years at old Mr. Briggs' had been like a long mellow autumn to Etie. While the old man had been chidishly grateful for the smallest attention, she was bewitched when they told her that he had left her five hundred dollars, and was only restrained by the lawyer from dividing the money on the spot between the old man's sons. He went with her to the bank and left her clutching a red pass book.

She carried it in a specially contrived pocket in her underclothing, and each night read its comforting message. Her shifting about from house to house began again and she threw herself into her work, hoarding every penny and wearing out the patience of Mrs. Charles with her excuses for staying away from town.

By the time the entries in the bank book were nearing a thousand dollars, the villagers had begun to call her "old Etie". Her walk had slowed to an old woman's shuffle. But she continued to plan her house, by loving foot, dream room by dream room; here she would hang the collection of flowers from the Holy Land which a missionary had given her brother; here she would spread her dearest treasure—a yellowed tea cloth of her mother's.

She was working at the Fosters' that summer. The big days taxed her strength, but the wages were good and perhaps she might be able to build her cottage in the fall. Then, one morning, she fell down the steps. Doctor Elliot found two broken bones and a skull fracture.

Mrs. Charles had Etie moved to her little room when she was able to leave the hospital. The doctor, that talking to someone she knew might take the unhappiness from the old woman's eyes. But the days grew into weeks and still Etie watched her friend with a blurred, uneasy look, demanding to be taken at once "to her own house". She really could not stay away any longer, she would plead, until she dropped into troubled slumber, bank book in her hands.

And so it came about that when the doctor's car stopped in front of Mrs. Charles' window one day to carry Etie to the Old People's Home, she sat serenely beside the doctor. Mrs. Charles wiped away untidy tears on the hem of her apron. It was hard, said Mrs. Charles, to see an old friend go to that place.

The afternoon sun shone warmly on the Home at the top of the hill, lighting its flower beds, turning its windows to gold.

"Etie tapped the doctor's arm.

"This is the house I've been telling you about," she said proudly. "You must come and see me when I get things set to rights."

And so old Etie came to her own house.

Funny and Otherwise

Dad, if I'm to advance in my studies at school I need an encyclopedia.

"You'll get no encyclopedia, and that's final. You can walk to school just as I did."

As most people know, the BBC employs "scouts" who inquire among the public what items are popular and so forth. One of these tackled a man who stated that he didn't listen much, but usually heard "Lift Up Your Heart".

"Then I take it you are interested in religion?" commented the scout.

"Well, no—but I wait for it to start because I know by that time I ought to be shaving."

Magistrate—You knew this man was a burglar and yet you married him?

Wife—Yes; I thought how nice and quiet he'd be around the house.

Widow, writing to an insurance company: "You have asked me to fill out so many proofs of claims and I have had so much trouble in getting my money that I sometimes wish my husband hadn't died."

After inspecting his stock of provisions, the lodger sought his landlady.

"Look here," he said as he held up a jar. "I'll bet you've been at my marmalade again?"

"Pardon me," replied the landlady in dignified tones, "you insult me. I never let!"

A boy at school, when asked to describe a kitten, said:

A kitten rushes like mad at nothing whatever—and stops before it gets there.

He could neither read nor write, but when a distant relation left him a small fortune, he started to make a splash. He bought a cheque book but instead of signing his name on the cheques he put two crosses, and the bank paid.

Then one day he handed the cashier a cheque signed with three crosses.

"What's this?" demanded the cashier. "You've put three crosses here."

"I know," was the reply, "but my wife's got social ambitions. She says I must have a middle name."

"My music teacher says I have a fine voice and should go far."

"Splendid! I'll help you pack."

The window-cleaner was going from door to door in an attempt to increase his "round", but his morning's toil proved fruitless. Coming to the last house in the road, he wearily lifted the knocker, and the door was opened by a sharp-faced woman.

"Clean your window upstairs, lady!" he insisted eagerly.

"No, thank you."

"Downstairs, lady?"

"No, thank you."

"Clean your greenhouse glass?"

"No, thank you."

"Well—let's give your specs a wipe over."

"All extremely bright men are conceited."

He shrugged gracefully. "Oh, I don't know; I'm not."

"I hear your aunt's very rich. Does she enjoy good health?"

"Yes—glads over it."

Wife: "Well, dear, I'll meet you at the Biltmore at twelve for lunch."

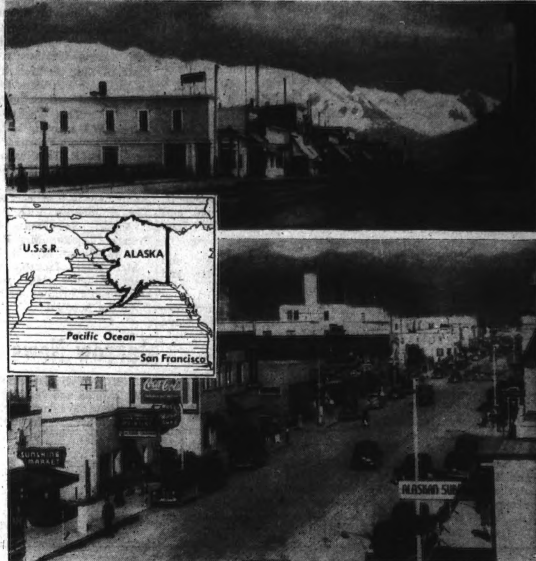

Husband: "All right, but please don't be any later than one."

Anchorage, Once a Sleepy Town, Now Alaska's Busiest, Biggest City

Top photo, Anchorage in 1934. Bottom photo, Anchorage, 1935.

By BRUCE WINTERS (CPC Correspondent)

At 4 a.m. on March 30, 1937, the U.S. closed a treaty with Russia for the purchase of Russian America.

Secretary of State William Seward was eager for Alaska.

His enthusiasm was not shared by most of his countrymen. The $7,200,000 purchase was denounced in the press as "an egregious blunder," a "bad bargain," panned off on "the silly administration" by the "shrewd Russia."

The property was nicknamed "Walt Russia," "Seward's Folly," and "(President) Johnson's Polar Bear Garden."

Now, some 35 years later, the United States army has scheduled defence building there which will be in excess of $240 million. That suggests the importance military leaders place on Alaska.

Military concepts of the natural and strategic value of Alaska have gone far. From airdromes on "Seward's Folly" the industrial heart of Russia's Communist empire is a bomber's distance away.

From this advance base on the Arctic Circle, the United States could launch retaliatory attacks with jet bombers or guided missiles to virtually every part of Europe, the Middle East and parts of Asia.

"The National Icehouse," as some newspapers in Seward's day called Alaska, has proven to be one of America's most valuable purchases.

The vast natural wealth of the country is largely untapped. Gold was the first mineral to lure prospectors. Now there are hopes of finding precious ores from which uranium, the meat of the A-bomb, can be refined.

In addition to the 21 million acres of forest reserve, the rare minerals of platinum, antimony and tungsten are mined there.

Interest in this slumbering giant grew among contractors and business speculators. From the period 1940-50 the population of Alaska jumped 71.4 per cent. Whereas the army formerly had four bids for each construction job, now there are at least 10 contractors vying for the chance to build in Alaska.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

PASTETITE, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. PASTETITE is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "dental odor" (denture breath). Get PASTETITE at any drug store.

The hundreds of millions of dollars being spent on defence projects has caused by-product booms in almost every phase of Alaskan life.

When the Alaskan railroad was built 35 years ago to link the interior with the coast, Anchorage was a frontier town of tents and shacks.

Anchorage today boasts a $5,000,000 international airport, paved streets, a new water and sewage system, and a multi-million dollar hospital for the country's 35,000 Eskimos and Indians.

Even today, most persons in North America share a mild ignorance about Alaska. Though the northern portions experience bitter Arctic winters, the southern areas have close to two million acres of land under cultivation.

Startling as it may seem, the annual mean temperature of Juneau, the capital city, is often degrees warmer than that of Winnipeg.

Through careful planning, the army hopes to push its new record construction program on a year-around basis. In colder regions, enough work will be done during the summer to permit workers to finish the interiors while the temperatures outside drop below zero.

Like everywhere else in the United States, Alaska is experiencing an acute housing shortage. The boom atmosphere of business has also caused prices to soar. But Alaska's "growing pains" are familiar and heartening to observers.

The subtle ironies of Russia's sale of Alaska to the United States are all the more poignant when considering the value of the real estate now. Alaska is a needle pointed at its former owner's head. It has become the possible spearhead of retaliation should the Muscovites plunge the world into a global war.

Funeral Held For Jarrow Man

CLAUDE HARRY MICHAEL

Funeral services for the late Claude Michael, who passed away at his home on January 17, were held at Jarrow United Church on January 22 at 2 p.m. Rev. Knight officiated at the services, where many relatives, friends and neighbors gathered to pay their last respects. Hymns sung were "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Pall bearers were Messrs. Klein and Bertil Sellstedt, Leif Pederson, Knut and Tom Overbo and Arthur Overby. Burial took place in the Jarrow cemetery with the Ronaghan funeral home in charge of the arrangements.

Claude Michael was born in Alma, Wis., on November 15, 1900. He came with his parents as a child to the Jarrow district where they homesteaded. He later returned to the States, then came back to Canada where he farmed in the Jarrow district until his death. He was 52 years at the time of his passing, the last several years of which he had suffered ill health.

He leaves to mourn his loss his loving wife and one son Virgil; his mother and six sisters, Hazel Miller, Doris Stewart and Josie Fergen all of Spokane, Wash.; Edna Spofford of Saskatchewan, Minnie Meakins and Elizabeth Meakins of Jarrow, also a large number of nieces and nephews.

Beautiful floral tributes were from: Loving wife and son; Harry and Minnie; Lizzie and Bob; Hazel, Art, Teddy and mother; Gail, Eddy and George; Mrs. Hannah Knudson; Annie, Bernie and family; Jim, Agnes and Margaret; Amy, Bill and family; Mabel and Beverly; Gordon, Joan and Terry; Morris, Viola and Darrel Mikelson; Clarence, Francis and family; Lili, Buster and family; Helen and Frankie; Thomas Newby; Norman and Claude; Mr. and Mrs. Leif Pederson and family; Klein and Bertil Sellstedt; Henning Johnson; Jamieson family and Grant; Harland, Marie and family; Ruth, Lawrence and boys.

To the Jarrow United Church Memorial Fund: Bill, Borghild, Shirleyanne and Douglas; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bruhaug and Olga; Mr. and Mrs. Stan Bridgeman and Gordon; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sonetti; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wright and Clifford; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Lovig and boys.

To the Cancer Fund: Mr. and Mrs. Charley Johnston; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Gardiner.

To the Irma United Church Memorial Fund: Mr. and Mrs. Steve Ploker and family.

HELLO, BABY!
GOODBYE, BONDS?

It was a worrying time . . . when it should have been a happy one. The stock was flying our way, but we didn't have the money needed to welcome our new baby. After going over our finances for the umpteenth time, we decided there was nothing for it but to cash our bonds. There had been too many 'surprise' expenses.

Luckily for us, our BofM manager had other ideas. "Here's a real chance for you to save, and you're missing it," he smiled.

"Save? At a time like this?" we nearly shouted.

"It's not as hard as you think," he said, "... quite a few of my customers do it.

"First, you have to plan yourself a budget . . . You need a road map, if you're to know where you're going with your money. Here's a little booklet called 'Personal Planning'. Read it carefully. It shows you how to work out your own way of getting ahead, financially—and how to save regularly from now on."

"But how can we save in our present pickle?" I asked him.

"Borrow against your bonds," he said. "You've got a steady job. After all, if you cash your bonds now, you'll have the money you need, but you won't have any savings left. If you use your bonds to borrow, you get them back by paying off your loan instalments. In other words, you're saving your savings. This is one of the times when borrowing is really saving."

Our story has a happy ending, because our financial worries went out of the window before the stock flew in. Yes, our baby had a happy welcome. We paid back the loan. Now, we still have our bonds, we're living on a budget suited to our needs and aims, AND we're saving regularly.

Saving is the only way to move ahead of your worries, and stay ahead. And—sometimes—borrowing at the B of M is the best way to save. Find out how to save despite today's high prices. Ask for your copy of "Personal Planning" at your neighborhood B of M branch. It's yours for the asking.
